Sending a warm hello to you.

We hope that you and your family are doing well during this challenging time.

We wanted to take a moment to provide you with an update on CWI community, employment and clinic services during the COVID-19 emergency.

We are pleased and grateful at this time that the CWI family has not experienced a confirmed case of COVID-19. We are taking all the precautions possible including social distancing, use of personal protective equipment, universal infection control measures, sanitizing and deep cleaning to minimize the possibility of infection.

Along these lines we have added remote services as a way to stay connected and support you by telephone or other technology. Some services continue to be available in-person. Everything is based on each person's unique situation and preferences. We are committed to providing essential supports that are appropriate.

CWI leadership meets daily and is connected with our state agency funding sources to stay on top of the latest developments and changes that affect the services we provide to you.

We encourage you to connect with CWI's webpage, www.cwinc.org, where we have posted resources and information related to COVID-19; we will continue to provide critical communication on our website. Also, our Facebook Page that has photos of how we are getting through this together, very inspiring and we encourage you to check it out.
